

Middle School Service Hours

In the Bible we have documentation of Jesus' life for only about three years. Even though we know that He was on earth, because we read about His birth in the beginning of the Gospels. For the most part all we have about Jesus is how He served people. Those three years of documentation is Jesus going around serving the people around Him. Just as Jesus focused on serving we would like to do the same. Every quarter we require all middle school students to turn in at least five service hours to their Bible teacher and it goes as part of their grade in.

These hours can be a variety of things from cutting a neighbors' yard for free, to helping serve in children's church at school. No student can turn in service that he or she was paid for. There are always options to be find new, creative ways to serve. Some of these ways include helping the homeless receive the items they need, to taking Christmas presents to those who have none. Bridgeway has always had a heart for the people around us and we will always try our best to maintain that heart. If you or your child need help with finding a service project(s) please feel free to ask one of your Middle School teachers or someone on the Administration team.

We also as a school try and have service projects available for students for the first three quarters. Although it doesn't always cover all five hours, it usually gives students a good starting point.
